Note: Special topics courses and independent studies can be used—judiciously—to replace courses above.
² All PhD students must take EFR 516. EFR 515 is a prerequisite, but because it is considered a masters level course, it cannot count toward the PhD.
