RESIDENT TEACHERS
Each resident teacher will assume full responsibility for a middle level classroom and must be certified to teach in North Dakota. Resident teachers will earn stipends and a waiver of University tuition for a major portion of work toward the master’s degree. Residents are responsible for university fees each semester. Resident teachers will enroll in graduate study during the summer prior to assuming teaching responsibilities and will complete their degree work the following summer.

RESIDENT MENTOR
The resident teacher program is enhanced by an experienced resident mentor from the Grand Forks Public Schools. This individual will coach and provide support to the resident teacher and work with the University faculty (in development of curriculum for teacher education).

UNIVERSITY MENTOR
The university mentor represents the University of North Dakota’s interests in the Resident Teacher Program. This individual advises the residents and links them to the services of the University. This University mentor offers the participants consultation and support both at the University and in the Grand Forks Public Schools.

The Resident Teacher Program is a great way to gain experience as a first-year teacher while furthering your education as well. This program gave me the tools to feel confident as I walked into my classroom the following year.

(Rev 9/12/16)
The Middle Level Resident Teacher Program of the College of Education and Human Development, University of North Dakota, and the Grand Forks Public Schools, provides a group of inexperienced teachers (residents) with support to enter teaching at the middle level. Residents have an opportunity to earn a M.S. in Education with a cognate in middle level through on-campus coursework and field experience in the Grand Forks Public Schools.

I feel strongly that the Resident Teacher Program made me more attractive to potential employers. Because I had my master's degree and the middle level endorsement under my belt, I walked into my second year of teaching much better prepared to meet the educational, emotional, and physical needs of my young adolescent students. With the support and enthusiasm of my mentor teacher and university supervisor, I grew from an overwhelmed rookie teacher into a more confident and competent professional.
